New York/Hartford, CT (November 8, 2019) -- Graham's Foundation (GrahamsFoundation.org), the global support organization for families facing the challenges of premature birth, honored James Moore, MD, PhD, at its 'Tinis for Preemies event at the Upper Story by Charlie Palmer in New York on November 7. The reception was attended by healthcare providers, families of premature babies, supporters, and representatives from Graham's Foundation.

Dr. Moore is the division head for Neonatal-Perinatal Medicine at Connecticut Children's Medical Center and an associate professor of Pediatrics at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine. He is also chair of the Virtual Health and Telemedicine program for Connecticut Children's. Dr. Moore has received numerous awards and accolades for his dedication and expertise as a clinician, educator, and researcher.

"Each year we recognize someone who has dedicated their life to improving outcomes for preemies and families," said Graham's Foundation founder and president Nicholas Hall. "Through 'Tinis for Preemies, we aim to raise awareness of not only the impact of premature birth, but also the need to increase research into improving outcomes for future preemies and families. Supporting leaders like Dr. Moore is crucial to the continuing evolution of preemie care."
